SEMINAR REPORT -1

On October 24, 2024, the Department of History at Sarbati Devi Women's College, Rajgangpur, organized a thought-provoking seminar titled "The Role of Gandhi in India's Independence Movement," aimed at enlightening students and faculty on the transformative contributions of Mahatma Gandhi to India's freedom struggle. The event commenced with a warm welcome address by Mr. Sachin Minj, the Head of the Department, who emphasized Gandhi's enduring legacy as a beacon of non-violence and moral leadership, setting an inspiring tone for the proceedings and underscoring the relevance of historical figures in shaping contemporary values.

The keynote address was delivered by the esteemed resource person, Ms. Reena Tete, Lecturer in History at B.R. Science College, Kendrapada. With eloquence and depth, Ms. Tete elucidated Gandhi's pivotal role in mobilizing the masses through innovative strategies like the Non-Cooperation Movement of 1920-22, which boycotted British goods and institutions, fostering a sense of national unity. She highlighted landmark events such as the 1930 Salt March, a 240-mile protest against the salt tax that symbolized defiance and galvanized global attention, and the 1942 Quit India Movement, which demanded immediate British withdrawal and marked a crescendo of resistance despite severe repression. Ms. Tete also delved into Gandhi's philosophy of Satyagraha—truth-force—as a non-violent tool that not only dismantled colonial rule but also influenced civil rights movements worldwide, crediting his emphasis on self-reliance, communal harmony, and ethical governance for India's eventual independence in 1947.

The seminar concluded on a grateful note with the vote of thanks proposed by Ms. Surekha Lakra, Lecturer in History, who appreciated Ms. Tete's insightful presentation for reigniting interest in Gandhian principles amid modern challenges. She also commended the organizing team and attendees for their active participation, which included vibrant Q&A sessions that enriched the discourse. Overall, the event served as a poignant reminder of Gandhi's indomitable spirit, reinforcing the department's commitment to fostering historical awareness and civic responsibility among the youth.

SEMINAR REPORT -2

On November 19, 2024, the Department of History at Sarbati Devi Women's College, Rajgangpur, organized a insightful departmental seminar titled "The Fall of the Roman Empire: Internal and External Factors," presented by two diligent students, Alka Minz and Anjali Tirkey. The event commenced with a warm welcome address delivered by the Head of the Department, Sachim Minj, who emphasized the enduring relevance of studying ancient civilizations like Rome to understand contemporary geopolitical shifts and the fragility of empires. In their well-structured presentation, Alka Minz and Anjali Tirkey meticulously explored the multifaceted causes behind the collapse of the Western Roman Empire in 476 CE. Internally, they highlighted economic stagnation marked by hyperinflation, heavy taxation, and agricultural decline; political instability fueled by frequent emperor assassinations and civil wars; and social decay through widespread corruption, loss of civic virtue, and the burdensome reliance on slave labor that stifled innovation. Externally, the duo delved into relentless barbarian invasions by Germanic tribes such as the Visigoths and Vandals, exacerbated by Rome's overstretched military frontiers and diplomatic failures, alongside pressures from the rising Sassanid Empire in the East. Drawing on primary sources like Gibbon's "Decline and Fall" and archaeological evidence, the presenters argued that these intertwined factors created a perfect storm, leading to the empire's fragmentation and the dawn of the Middle Ages. The seminar sparked engaging discussions among faculty and students, underscoring the timeless lessons in resilience and governance. Concluding the proceedings, Surekha Lakra extended a heartfelt vote of thanks to the presenters for their scholarly depth, the HOD for her guidance, and all attendees for their active participation, fostering a vibrant academic atmosphere in the department.

On November 19, 2024, the Department of History at Sarbati Devi Women's College, Rajgangpur, hosted a seminar on "The Fall of the Roman Empire: Internal and External Factors," presented by students Alka Minz and Anjali Tirkey. The event began with a welcome address by Head of Department Sachim Minj, highlighting the relevance of Rome's decline to modern empires. Alka and Anjali detailed internal factors like economic woes—hyperinflation, heavy taxes, and agricultural slump—alongside political chaos from assassinations and civil wars. They also covered social erosion through corruption, lost civic values, and inefficient slave-based economy that hindered progress. Externally, barbarian invasions by Visigoths and Vandals overwhelmed Rome's stretched borders, worsened by failed diplomacy and Sassanid threats from the East. Citing Gibbon's "Decline and Fall" and archaeological finds, the presenters showed how these forces intertwined to fragment the empire in 476 CE. The session ignited lively faculty-student discussions on governance lessons, marking a vibrant academic day. Surekha Lakra concluded with a vote of thanks to the presenters, HOD, and attendees for enriching the department's discourse.

SEMINAR REPORT -3

On February 5, 2025, the Department of History at Sarbati Devi Women's College, Rajgangpur, organized a insightful seminar titled "The Role of Women in the French Revolution," drawing a keen audience of students and faculty eager to explore this pivotal historical theme. The event commenced with a warm welcome address by Mr. Sachim Minj, the Head of the Department, who emphasized the enduring significance of women's contributions to revolutionary movements and how they challenge traditional narratives of power and agency in history. As the resource person, Mr. Sushil Bhengra from S.S. College, Birimtrapur, delivered an engaging lecture that illuminated the multifaceted roles women played during the French Revolution of 1789-1799. He highlighted how women, often marginalized in official records, mobilized through clubs like the Society of Revolutionary Republican Women, participated in key events such as the Women's March on Versailles in October 1789, and advocated for rights in petitions and salons, though their demands for equality were ultimately curtailed by the revolutionary government's patriarchal structures. Bhengra also discussed influential figures like Olympe de Gouges, whose Declaration of the Rights of Woman and the Female Citizen boldly critiqued the male-centric Declaration of the Rights of Man, underscoring the tension between revolutionary ideals and gender inequities. The seminar fostered lively discussions on parallels to modern feminist movements, enriching participants' understanding of women's agency in shaping societal change. Concluding the proceedings, Surekha Lakra extended a heartfelt vote of thanks to the resource person, the organizing team, and attendees, expressing gratitude for the enlightening discourse and reaffirming the department's commitment to such empowering academic initiatives.

SEMINAR REPORT -4

On March 25, 2025, the Department of History at Sarbati Devi Women's College, Rajgangpur, organized a thought-provoking seminar titled "The Impact of the Printing Press on the European Renaissance." The event, held in the college auditorium, drew an enthusiastic audience of students, faculty, and history enthusiasts, fostering a vibrant discussion on one of the pivotal technological revolutions that reshaped intellectual landscapes. Mr. Sachim Minj, the Head of the Department, delivered a warm welcome address, highlighting the enduring relevance of the Renaissance as a beacon of human progress and underscoring how the printing press served as its unsung catalyst, setting an inspiring tone for the proceedings.

The keynote lecture was presented by the esteemed resource person, Mrs. Bhanaja Sarangi, faculty from PS College, Bargaon, whose expertise in historical innovations brought depth and clarity to the topic. Mrs. Sarangi eloquently traced the invention of the movable-type printing press by Johannes Gutenberg in the mid-15th century, emphasizing its transformative role in democratizing knowledge across Europe. She illustrated how this invention exponentially accelerated the dissemination of classical texts, humanistic ideas, and scientific discoveries, making books more affordable and accessible beyond the elite monasteries and universities. The press, she argued, fueled the Renaissance spirit by enabling scholars like Erasmus and artists like Dürer to share works rapidly, sparking intellectual ferment that bridged the medieval and modern worlds. Through vivid anecdotes and timelines, Mrs. Sarangi connected the dots between the press's proliferation—producing over 20 million volumes by 1500—and the era's cultural explosion, from the revival of Greek and Roman learning to the rise of vernacular literatures that empowered diverse voices.

The seminar concluded on a grateful note with the vote of thanks by Surekha Lakra, a senior lecturer in the Department of History, who appreciated the resource person's insightful delivery and the active participation of attendees. She reiterated the seminar's success in reigniting curiosity about historical turning points and encouraged ongoing exploration of technology's societal ripples. Overall, the event not only enriched participants' understanding of the printing press as a cornerstone of the European Renaissance but also reinforced the Department of History's commitment to blending scholarly discourse with contemporary relevance at Sarbati Devi Women's College.
